ABOUT AMMA

AMMA is Australia's resources and energy industry employer group. Since 1918, we have worked to keep Australia's resources and energy industry an attractive place to invest and do business, employ people and contribute to the national wellbeing.

Our national team helps employers meet your commercial objectives and overcome operating challenges, and assists in the productive, competitive and socially responsible running of your businesses and workplaces.

As an AMMA member, you can be assured that you are receiving expert guidance based on an intimate knowledge of your industry sector and genuine motivation to facilitate your business success.

When you need expert support for your business and workplace challenges in 2018, AMMA is your first port of call.

WORKPLACE RELATIONS SERVICES AND SUPPORT

AMMA's Workplace Relations experts offer strategic and operational support tailored to the resources and energy industry across all areas of workplace relations.

Our consultants draw on unrivalled hands-on experience and industry knowledge to manage your business and provide solutions to the wide range of challenges you may face.

Just some areas of expertise include:

- Enterprise bargaining
- Workforce change and restructures
- Workplace disputes and investigations
- FWC representation and advocacy
- Contractor management and support
- Workforce design and planning
- Workplace transformation

For general workplace advice or more complex issues requiring high-level specialist support, AMMA has you covered.

WORKFORCE DEVELOPMENT AND DIVERSITY

From involvement in national skills policy through to the upskilling of people directly in your workplaces, AMMA assists our members in preparing for future people demands and ensuring access to a skilled and ready workforce.

Our national consulting team delivers customised training on all workforce and people matters where you need it – on-site, online, at your offices or our facilities. We design and deliver specific courses that best suit your business objectives.

AMMA is also the industry's leading authority on workforce diversity. Through our government-backed initiative the Australian Women in Resources Alliance (AWRA), we assist employers on their diversity journey through various support services and programs.

For all your skills, development and diversity needs, AMMA is here to help.

POLICY AND ADVOCACY

As the leading voice for Australia's resources and energy industry, AMMA's policy and advocacy work actively shapes the environment in which we all operate.

Through specialist lobbying and government relations, we engage directly with our nation's key influencers and achieve cost outcomes to the tune of hundreds of millions of dollars each year for our members and the resource industry.

As an AMMA member, you too have an opportunity to actively influence and change the industry and workplace policy environment.

To have your say on the regulation of our industry, AMMA is the place to provide your views with strength in numbers, credibility and influence where it matters.

Get in contact today to learn how you can be involved.

NEWS, INFORMATION AND EVENTS

With the majority of Australian resources and energy employers being AMMA members, you have access to a powerful network of information, leadership, representation, innovation and influence.

AMMA provides exclusive events, briefings, publications and networking opportunities for our members to keep you connected to the right people and up-to-date on the latest industry developments.

You will receive email News Updates, issue-specific communications and publications detailing the latest on workplace relations and industry matters.

You'll also be invited to a range of invaluable AMMA events in your area.

Further, our dedicated public affairs team can assist with any communications strategies, publicity opportunities or crisis management that you may face.
